Courses taken at UNO, UNK, or UNMC may be used in the qualifying GPA calculation, but you must be a degree seeking student through UNL to qualify for academic bankruptcy. In order to exercise this option, you must:

- Discuss the desire to bankrupt a semester with your academic advisor.
- If you qualify, complete this form, and submit it to your academic advisor.
- Your academic advisor will submit the signed form to the Director of Enrollment Operations for the College.

In order to declare a semester bankrupt, certain conditions must be understood:

- All courses taken during the semester are bankrupt. This includes credit hours and grades.
- The bankrupt semester is removed from consideration for GPA purposes and the bankrupt credit is not used for degree requirements. The semester listing of courses and grades remain evident on your transcript, but are marked "Academic Bankruptcy."
- Since "P" and "N" grades do not have specific numerical equivalents, they may not be used to meet bankruptcy requirements.
- The request for bankruptcy must be submitted prior to receiving a baccalaureate degree for UNL.
- You may not use a term(s) to qualify if you have currently have an Incomplete or No Report for any course in that term(s).
- If the term(s) you're bankrupting includes any Repeat-Excluded courses, the original grade will be included in your GPA.
- Academic bankruptcy does not forgive attempted credit hours in the satisfactory academic progress calculations for financial aid recipients.
- A student seeking bankruptcy must be enrolled in a baccalaureate degree program in the College of Engineering at the time of applications. This includes Exploratory and Pre-Professional students.
- If you file academic bankruptcy for a semester(s) that was covered by veterans benefits, the V.A. will be notified.
